Data Breach Notification

Under the Privacy Amendment (Notifiable Data Breaches) Act 2017 (Cth), Sallis FP is required to give notice to the Australian Information Commissioner (OAIC) and affected individuals of an "eligible data breach". This means that if we hold personal information about you, and there is unauthorised access to or disclosure of your personal information, and if you, as the "affected individual" would be likely to suffer serious harm from this access or disclosure, we must notify both you and the OAIC.

"Serious harm" could include identity theft, threats to physical safety, economic and financial harm, harm to reputation, embarrassment, discrimination, or harassment. The test is whether a "reasonable person" would expect you to suffer serious harm.

If you are likely to suffer serious harm from a data breach, we will notify you of:

- the nature of the eligible data breach (i.e. how the information was accessed or disclosed).
- the type of information that was accessed or disclosed.
- the steps that we have taken to control or reduce the harm, and those that we plan to take.
- any assistance we can offer you, such as arranging for credit monitoring.
- anything that we can suggest you can do to assist yourself or mitigate the harm.
- whether the breach has also been notified to the OAIC.
- how you can contact us for information or to complain; and
- how to make a complaint with the OAIC.

We will notify you using the same method that we usually use to communicate with you. If it is not practicable for us to notify you personally, we will publish the notification on our website.

There are some circumstances in which we do not have to notify you of a data breach. These include:

- where we have taken remedial action before any serious harm has been caused by the breach.
- if you have been notified of a breach by another entity.
- if notification would be inconsistent with Commonwealth secrecy laws; or
- where the Commissioner declares that notification does not have to be given.

Depending on the nature of the breach and the harm, we will also consider informing other third parties such as the police or other regulators or professional bodies.
